MEDIA RELEASE / 27 April 2026

Australian Asset Management Expertise Recognised on Global Stage as Asset Management Council Chair Invited to Washington, D.C.

The Asset Management Council (AMC) is proud to announce that National Chair Wendy McPate has been invited to Washington, D.C. to participate in a high-level international program showcasing the value and benefits of asset management to senior elected representatives, government officials, and industry leaders across the United States.

The invitation has been extended by the Asset Leadership Network as part of the Global Asset Management Summit: Repeatable Success Stories, being held from 27–30 April 2026 in Washington, D.C. The summit will bring together international, federal, state and local government leaders to examine how better asset management can improve infrastructure outcomes, productivity, resilience, and public value.

As part of the program, Ms McPate will present Australian case studies demonstrating how asset management principles are delivering measurable benefits across infrastructure, utilities, transport, energy and public sector organisations. She is also scheduled to participate in strategic panel discussions with senior global leaders and will meet with officials from the Australian Embassy in Washington, D.C. during her visit.

Ms Pate said the invitation reflects Australia's growing international reputation as a leader in asset management practice.

"This is a significant recognition of the expertise developed in Australia and of the leadership role the Asset Management Council has played in advancing professional asset management capability. Asset management is increasingly recognised globally as a practical discipline that improves decision-making, productivity, sustainability and whole-of-life outcomes. Australia has much to contribute."

Ms McPate said she was honoured to represent Australia and the AMC on the international stage. "It is a privilege to represent the Asset Management Council and Australia in Washington, D.C., and to share practical examples of how strong asset management creates lasting value for communities, governments and industry. Australia has built deep expertise in managing complex asset portfolios across diverse sectors. I look forward to sharing those lessons and learning from our international counterparts. This invitation highlights that Australian knowledge, innovation and leadership in asset management are respected around the world."

The visit further demonstrates the increasing importance of asset management as governments worldwide seek smarter ways to manage infrastructure investment, improve resilience, and maximise value from public assets.

The Asset Management Council continues to champion leading practice across Australia and internationally, supporting organisations to improve society and empower sustainable communities.
